

Our plant

In regard of our backwards path, instead of buying a "standard" production plant available in the market, we preferred to design and plan an exclusive layout that we carried out in synergy with a well established craftwork company skilled in manufacturing food stainless steel, particularly focused on mixing processes. For this reason, the Maltus Faber plant is a unique plant (whose project is of our property) that can possibly serve as a reference point for both newly opened and expanding breweries. For those interested, please contact us to ask for further information or an estimate.
